&lt;p&gt;Arrigo Sacchi (born 1 April 1946) is an Italian former professional football coach. He has twice managed AC Milan (1987–1991, &#128184; 1996–1997), with great success. He won the Serie A title in his 1987–88 debut season and then dominated European football &#128184; by winning back to back European Cups in 1989 and 1990. From 1991 to 1996, he was head coach of &#128184; the Italy national team and led them to the 1994 FIFA World Cup Final, where they lost to Brazil in &#128184; a penalty shoot-out.&lt;/p&gt;

&lt;p&gt;Sacchi is regarded as one of the greatest managers of all time[2] and his Milan side (1987–1991) is &#128184; widely regarded to be one of the greatest club sides to ever play the game, and by some to be &#128184; the greatest of all time.[3][4][5]&lt;/p&gt;

&lt;p&gt;Sacchi was never a professional football player and for many years worked as a shoe salesman. &#128184; This led to his famous quote directed at those who questioned his qualifications: &quot;I never realised that in order to &#128184; become a jockey you have to have been a horse first.&quot;[6] Another famous Sacchi quote is that &quot;football is the &#128184; most important of the least important things in life.&quot;[7]&lt;/p&gt;
