United Kingdom, Malta, Gibraltar, Isle of Man, and Alderney. These countries have their own gaming licensing authorities that oversee their respective markets. In the UK, the Gambling Commission regulates all forms of gambling, including online gaming. In Malta, the Gaming Regulation and Enforcement Administration (GREA) oversees the gaming industry. Gibraltar and the Isle of Man have their own regulatory bodies, and Alderney is a tax haven for gaming operators.

Why does Xbox only allow customers to redeem Xbox Game Pass subscription codes within each country/region? Country-specific (or region-specific) Game Pass subscriptions are available in the United Kingdom, Ireland, France, Germany, Spain, Italy, Portugal, Greece, Turkey, and the United States. This is because Xbox Game Pass is a service that is licensed to specific countries and regions. Each country has its own regulatory requirements, and Xbox must comply with these requirements to offer the service. Additionally, Xbox Game Pass is a service that is licensed to specific countries and regions. Game Pass reflects the local market economy in which the Xbox Game Pass subscription was purchased and redeemed. This is because the price of Game Pass is determined by the local market conditions in each country. For example, the price of Game Pass is lower in countries with a lower cost of living, such as Ireland, and higher in countries with a higher cost of living, such as the United States.

Game Pass isn't exclusive to the US. I'm in Canada, and I have it. An active Game Pass subscription is required to play games. Some games may be available only to account holders 18 years and older.

Why is Gamepass only exclusive to US? I can't change it to my country.
