A "2 to 3 goals" expression is generally used to refer to a narrow range of objectives to be achieved within a certain period of time or context. However, it is important to note that the interpretation of this expression can vary depending on the context. In general, "2 to 3 goals" can be understood as a goal of achieving two or three specific things that are considered important or priorities. This can be applied to different situations, such as in the world of business, sports performance or even in academic studies. For example, a company can define "2 to 3 goals" for the fiscal year, such as increasing sales by 10%, reducing costs by 5% and expanding the product line into new market segments. However, it is important to note that the definition of "2 to 3 goals" should be interpreted in a way that is not too restrictive. Instead, it should be seen as a general orientation to help focus efforts and resources on clear and achievable objectives. It is also important to note that the expression "2 to 3 goals" is often used in a context of addiction or compulsive behavior, such as in the case of gambling or gaming. In these cases, the expression is used to describe a goal of achieving a certain number of wins or losses, which is often unrealistic and can lead to negative consequences.
